DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL

Pittsburgb, Aug. 28.—Pittsburgh and the Boston Braves divided a double-header here to-day, the former winning the first game by a score of 5 to 1 and the latter the second, 8 to 2.

Mamaux made his first appearance in the oox since his suspension of ten days and held the visitors to seven this in the opening contest, while his learning to pounded Rudolph and Nehf it well for several weeks at third base.
Angel Aragon, the Cuban, has nursed his maimed thumb back to life and was able to fill in at third in Cleveland.
Angelo is hefty enough for his size, but he is no Frank Baker. Neither is he a Fritz Maisel. He lacks the polish that experience alone can give.

Maisel May Play To-Day.

Now there is reason to believe that a next to Baker will be at the difficult corner for our Yankees beginning to day. Maisel has been any political to the monthly event.

a next to Baker will be at the difficult corner for our Yankees beginning to day. Maisel has been working the knots out of his welded collarbone for several weeks. Fritz cannot throw quite so wickedly as before he was hurt. He had as good an arm as could be found anywhere. But he reported yesterday to Donovan that he was sure he could find the range once more. The plan now is to utilize Fritz if he is as good as he believes—till

The result of the first game will possibly influence Bill Donovan's selections. Nick Cullop will take it upon himself to break the Coveleskie jinx. The Glory of the Game.

Why, it was only yesterday I dreamed How great the glory of the game must be Where far away the flugs of empire gleamed, And gleaming called me on by land and sea; To know the heights, red-rimmed against the sky, To take my place out in the world of men. To know the heights? I only know that I Want to go home again.

I think now of a vanished summer's day. When each far height took on a rarer gleam, I left old-fashioned drifts to make my way By wraith trails through the poppy fields of dream; To know life's fame before I came to die, To have the laurel wreathed on blade or pen; To know life's fame? I only know that I Want to go home again.

How each height flamed that day from where I turned To take my part with those who ruled the game; By dawn and darkness each new vision burned Until the goal swept to a mighty flame; It may be that this flame still spans the sky, A greater flame than I had dreamed of then, I do not know-I only know that I Want to go back again.

Quincy Club Yacht Beats
Wasaka II and Nahma
on the Sound.

By Captain JAMES C, SUMMERS.
The sloop yacht Armeek, flying the flag of the Quincy Yacht Club and sailed by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, was the winner yesterday of the first of three races to be contested on the Sound for the possession of the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup. The Armeek defeated the Wasaka II, representing the South Boston Yacht Club, by 1 minute 23 seconds. The Nahma had started far astern of the others and were sailing over the course to save their points.

Down the wind again the six racing The Jown the fort the four miles to the lee mark. The Joyant miles to the lee mar by 1 minute 23 seconds. The Nahmathe defender of the cup, which is held Willing Welling the defender of the cup, which is held by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club—was the third yacht to finish, 1 minute 20 seconds astern of the Wasaka II, with the Joyant, the Larchmont Yacht Club's representative, 1 minute 42 seconds in the Nahma's wake.

The race was sailed over a sixteen-mile course—four miles to leeward and return, covered twice—in a breeze that reached at times, before the start and during the early part of the race, a velocity of forty miles an hour, resulting in one of the most exciting and sensational races ever sailed for the trophy.

Out of an angry looking, overcast sky just before the starting signals were set from the steam yacht Joyance, anchored off Great Captain's Island, vicious squalls came from the north, sending the spindrift flying before it. Things began to happen to the eleven yachts—seven from the Eastern and four from the Sound clubs—with sails set ready to start. "Knockdowns" were frequent, and at one time it looked as if all hands would have to reef. One yacht, George Lee's Bernice, did put in a single reef. The jib of the challenger right on the spot.

Addison Hanan, at the wheel, always resourceful, determined to keep her going. He sent a man aloft in a boatswain's chair with orders to get the jaws back in place and lash them. He did so, and during the rest of the race a man was often sent aloft. While the mainsail sagged, losing valuable time for the yacht, she finished third after the two runs and two beats to windward. When the accident happened she had moved from sixth place at the start to second place, when

The start, while exciting enough in such a breeze, was a poor one in that the starters were not ready, with the exception of the Britomart, which was first away, with boom broad off to starbovrd, almost with the gun. The Bernice was second across the line, followed by the Ellen, both with booms to port. Then came the Nutmeg II and the Hayseed IV on the starboard gybe, followed by the Nahma, the Wasaka II and the Jovant, with booms to port.

Thirteen minutes after the start the Bernice, handled by Goorge Lee, of the Manchester Yach Club, had to luff up and quit because of Culb, had to luff up and quit because of Curying away her throat halyards. Seven minutes after the accident the Hayseed IV dropped out of the race for the same reason. About the same time the Joyant, Clifford Mallory's sloop, carried away her throat halyards, but her crew lowered away smartly and repaired the damage. Hosting away again, she was sixth yacht around the leemark.
